To whom it may concern

Tom Greenway worked at Rumba as a freelancer between July and November 2006. His duties included design, artworking, liaising with clients and general administrative work around the office.

He was enthusiastic and hard working at all times and proved articulate when discussing ideas or talking to clients. He was able to come up with a range of ideas for the design projects he was set and produced work that was creative and well presented. As an artworker he was accurate and conscientious.

Tom was lively and had a good sense of humour. He would make an excellent addition to any studio.

Best wishes
